THE TRUTH ABOUT KIDNEY TROUBLE

(SWELLING ANKLES)

Swelling ankles, or hands, or puffing eyes, are usually the first notices of dropsy, which is almost always definite evidence of inflammation of the kidneys that has made considerable progress. It is usually the result of a supposed incurable stage when first noticed.

The inflammation has closed the tubules in the kidneys, and the heart pumping through the obstruction has increased the blood pressure until the thin watery portions are forced through the veins and drop down and settle in the hands and feet, and in the eyelids at night.

As the books know nothing that will reduce kidney inflammation, and even the tubules, there has been no successful treatment for dropsy, physicians usually attempting to prolong life by giving nitro-glycerine, digitalis, etc., to strengthen the heart. This treatment may momentarily assist the patient, but it has no deterrent effect on the disease, and the inflammation in the kidney tissues, and the patient almost inevitably succumbs. Hence dropsy has been considered incurable.

It can be readily appreciated that if Fenton's Renal Compound disperses inflammation in the kidneys that the tubules will open and the inflammation will decline with gradual restoration.

This is exactly what happens, and inflammation of the kidneys of the body is removed, and the patient now yields to the Renal Compound in about 87 per cent. of all cases without reference to whether it is in the first or second stage. In fact, this inflammation now practically disappears in the presence of a real specific for inflammation of the kidneys.
